Judges' Comments:

“ Good letters of recommendation.

“ ENSCICON puts their employee's needs before their own, very impressed with the case study provided.

Encscicon has become one of the leading national players in recruiting A-list engineering talent for our clients, which include Fortune 500™ firms as well as up-and-coming growth firms in some of the Engineering, Procurement and Construction sector's hottest niches.

From CEO to the experienced hands-on engineer, if you work in our industries, we want to get to know you and your career aspirations. For more than two decades we have been helping our candidates realize their personal and professional aspirations through thoughtful introductions to our clients, who ask us to help them recruit the best employees and contract consultants.

We take the long view on establishing relationships and believe the best way to help our clients is by getting to know our candidates and their families at a meaningful level so that we can represent their interests fairly and accurately. Our clients trust us with some of their most critical manpower needs. As a result you can expect to interview for some of the most progressive, career-expanding work available.
